

Instructions

1. Observations are made by identifying (not guessing) the sex and age class of a deer or group of deer.
2. Identify deer as bucks, doe or fawns. Use binoculars to aid in positive identification. (Five positively identified deer are better information than fifty guesses.) If possible log bucks by antler size, otherwise log as buck (other). If any deer has an ear tag, record color and number if possible.
3. If the same group of deer are seen on different occasions, they should be recorded each time.
4. If only part of a group can be identified, then none of that group should be recorded. (Example: If you see three deer standing at the edge of the woods and two run off before you can identify all three, then do not log any deer in that group.)
5. Log observations from July 15 through October 1, then fold, tape and place stamp for mailing.
